SUBJECT:

FROM:

"PRM-46" Forgery

The document is an obvious forgery, but professionally done, and obviously designed to discredit the President, his African policy, and Dr. Brzezinski personally.

Items:

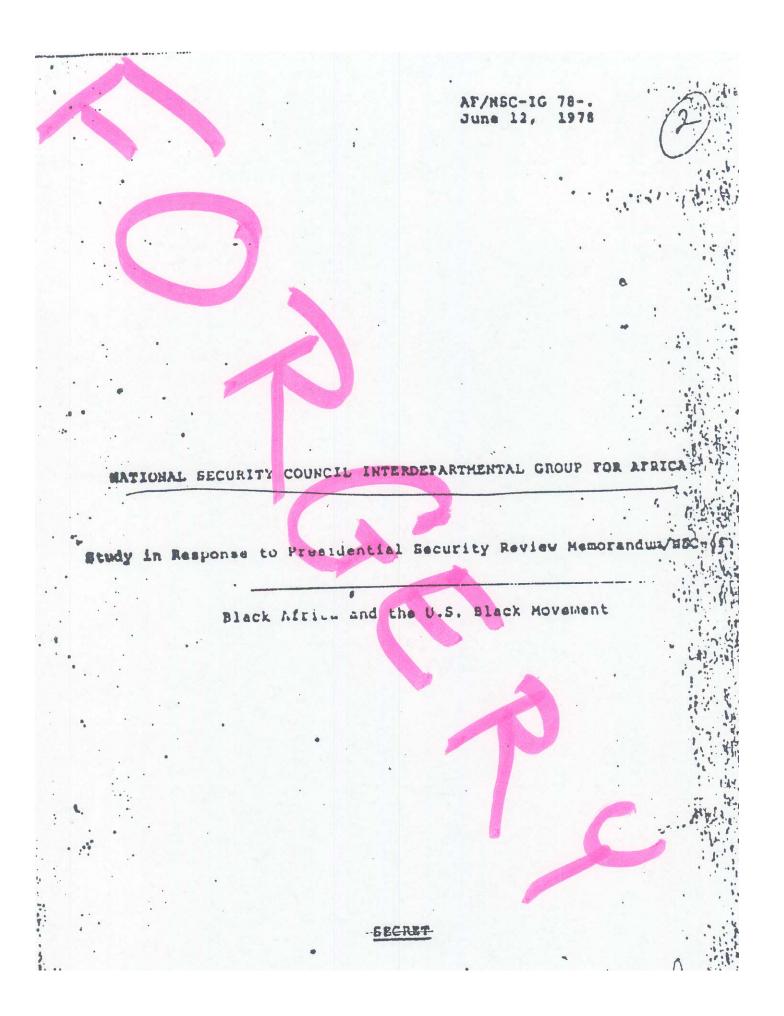

- -- The real PRM-46 dealt with an entirely different topic, and an entirely different geographic region.
- -- There are no such entities as the "NSC Interdepartmental Group for Africa," nor the "NSC Political Analysis Committee," -- as referred to in the first page of the forged document.
- -- A thorough computer and physical check of the files reveals no PRM nor any other NSC document of any kind concerning "The US Black Movement."
- -- The substance of the 13-page document is often blatantly racist in tone, and obviously completely inconsistent with the tone and substance of the domestic and foreign policy of the Carter Administration.

This scurrilous document was surfaced in a calculated and orchestrated manner on Tuesday, September 16, to a number of media people in the New York area. It came into our possession last night and it was quickly determined to be a complete forgery.

The case will be turned over to the FBI for investigation.

A. U.S. INTERESTS IN BLACK AFRICA

JEFKEI

A multiplicity of interests influences the U.S. attitude toward black Africa. The most important of these interests par be summarized as follows:

If black African states assume attitudes hostile to the U.S. national interest, our policy toward the white regimes, which is a key element in our relations with the black states, say be subjected by the latter to great pressure for fundamental change. Thus the West may face a real danger of being deprived of nocean to the enormous rew material resources of southern Africa which are vital for our defense needs as well as of losing control over the Cope use routes by which approximately 65% of Hiddle Eastern oil is supplied to Western Europe.

Moreover, such a development may bring about internal policif difficulties by intennifying the activity of the black moves. In the United States itself.

It should also be borne in mind that black Africa is on integral part of a continent where tribal and regional discord, economic backwardness, inadequate infrastructures, drought and famine are constant features of the scene. In conjunction with the artificial borders imposed by the formor colonial powers, guerrilla werfare in Rhodusia and widespread indignation coafnes apartheid in South Africa, the above factors provide the derivative states with ample opportunities for furthering their alms. This must necessarily redound to the detriment of U.S. political

2. Economic

Black Africa is increasingly becoming an outlet for U.S. exports and investment. The mineral resources of the area continue to be of great value for the normal functioning of industry in the United States and allied countries. In 1977, U.S. direct investment in Diack Africa totaled about # 1.8 billion and exports $ 2.2 billion. New prospects of substantial profit would continue.

IV. BLACK AFRICA AND THE U.S. BLACK MOVEMENT

Apart from the above-mentioned factors adverse to U.S. strategic interests, the nationalist liberation movement in black Africa can act as a catalyst with far-reaching effects on the American black community by stimulating its organizational consolidation and by inducing radical actions. Such a result would be likely if Zaire went the way of Angola and Hozambique.

A recurrence of the events of 1967-68 would do grievous harm to U.S. prestige, especially in view of the concern of the pressn Administration with human rights issues. Moreover, the Adminstration would have to take specific steps to stabilize the situation. Such steps might be misunderstood both inside and outside the United States.

In order to prevent such a trend and protect U.S. national security interests, it would appear essential to elaborate and carry out effective countermeasures.

1. Possimility of Joint Action by U.S. Blacka and accompanied by a long-lasting high rate of unemployment, especially among the youth, and by poverty and tradicional dissatisfaction with governmental social welfare standards.

These factors taken together may provide a basis for joint actions of a concrete nature by the African nationalist movement and the U.S. bluck community. Basically, such actions would take the form of demonstrations and public protests, but the likelihood of violence cannot be excluded. There would also be attempts to coordinate their political activity both locally and in international organizations.

Inside the United States, these actions could include protast demonstrations against our policy toward South Africa accompanied by demands for boycotting corporations and banks which maintain links with that country; attempts to establish a permanent black lobby in Congress including active loftist radical groups and black legislators; the reemergence of pane African ideals; resumption of protest marches recalling the days of Martin Luther King; renewal of the extremist nationalist idea of establishing an "African Hepublic" on American soil. Finally, leftist radical clements of the black community could resume extremist actions in the style of the defunct Black Panther Party.

Internationally, damage could be done to the United States by coordinated activity of African states designed to condern () U.S. policy toward South Africa and to initiate discussion on the U.S. racial issue at the United Nations where the African ' representation constitutes a powerful bloc with about one third of all the votes.

A manace to U.S. economic interests, though not a critical . . one, could be preed by a boycott by black African states against American companies which maintain contact with South Africa and Rhodesia. If the idea of economic assistance to black Americans shared by some African regimes could be realized by their placing orders in the United States mainly with companies owned by blacks, they could youn a limited influence on the U.S. black community.

In the above context, we must envisage the possibility, however remote, that black Americans interested in African offices may refocus their attention on the Arab-Israeli conflict. Takinginto account the African descent of American blacks, it is rearrow able to anticipate that their sympathies would lie with the Arabwho are closer to them in spirit and, in some cases, related to them by blood. Black involvement in lobbying to support the Arabs may lead to serious dissension between American blacks and Javs. The likelihood of extremist actions by either side is negligible, but the discord may bring about tension in the internet political climate of the United States.

national security. In the present case, emphasis is laid on the importance of black Africa for U.S. political, economic and military interests.

Reconuscudat __na

In weighing the range of U.S. interests in black Africa, basic recommendations, arranged without intent to imply priorit. are:

1. Specific steps should be taken with the help of appropriate government agencies to inhibit coordinated activity of the black nationalist movement in Africa and the black movement in the United States.

2. Special clandestine operations should be launched by the CIA to generate mistrust and hostility in American and world opinion against joint activity of the two forces, and . to cause division among black African radical matter flist groups and their leaders.

3. U.S. Embassies to black African countries spacially interested in southern Africa must be highly circumspact in vig. of the activity of certain political circles and influential individuals opposing the objectives and methods of U.S. policy toward South Africa. It must be kept in mind that the failure of U.S. strategy in South Africa would adversely affect American standing throughout the world. In addition, this would mean a significant diminution of U.S. influence in Africa and the emergence of new difficulties in our internal situation due to worsening sconomic prospects.

4. The FDI should mount surveillance operations against is black African representatives and collect sensitive information on these, especially at the UN, who oppose U.S. policy thread it is south Africa. The information should include facts on their links with the leaders of the black movement in the United States, thus making possible at least partial noutralization of the advorse effects of their activity.

TRENDS IN THE AMERICAN BLACK MOVEMENT

In connection with our African policy, it is highly important to evaluate correctly the present state of the black movement in the United States and, basing ourselves on all available information, to try to devise a course for ito future development. Such an approach is strongly suggested by our perception of the fact that American blacks form a single athnue group potentially capable of causing extreme instability in our strategy toward fouth Africa. This may lead to critical differences between the United States and the Third Horld in general and between the United States and black Africa in particular. It would also encourage the Soviet Union to step up its interference in the region. Finally, it would pose a serious threat to the deficate structure of race relations within the United States. All the above considerations give rise to concein for the future security of the United States.

Since the wid-1960s, when legislation on human rights was passed and Martin Luther King murdered, federal and local measures to improve black welfare have been taken, as a result of which the U.S. black movement has undergone considerable changes.

The principal changes are as follows:

-- Social and economic issues have supplanted political aims as the main preoccupations of the movement, and actions a formerly planned on a nationwide scale are now being organized locally.

-SECRET

- Fragmentation, and a lack of organizational unity in the movement.

-- Decrease of incluance in the movement's extremist groups. -- Sharp social stratification of the black population, and lack of policy options which could reunite them.

B. THE RANGE OF POLICY OPTIONS

The concern for the future security of the United States makes necessary the range of policy options. Arranged without intent to imply priority, they are:

(a) to enlarge programs, within the framework of the present budget, for the improvement of the social and economic welfare of American blacks in order to ensure continuing development of present trends in the black movement;

(b) to elaborate and bring into effect a special program designed to perpetuate divisions in the black movement; to neutralize the most active groups of leftist radical crientation and to diminish their influence among blacks; to stimulate dissension and hostility between organizations representing indifferent encial strate of the black componity; to encourage divisions in black circles;

(d) to work out and realize preventive operations in order, to impede durable tres between U.S. black organizations and radical groups in African states;

(e) to support actions designed to sharpen social stratification in the black community, which would lead to the widening and perpetuation of the gap between the successful educated blacks if and the poor, giving rise to growing antagonism between different black groups and weakening of the movement as a whole;

(f) to facilitate the greatest possible expansion of black business by granting government contracts and loans on favorable terms to black businessman;

(9) to take every possible measure through the AFL-CIO [1] leaders to counteract the increasing influence of black labor is organizations which function in all major unions, in particular, the national Coalition of Black Trade Unionists and its leaders in including the creation of real preconditions for adverse and hostile reaction among white trade unionists to demands for improvement of social and economic welfare of the blacks;

(b) to support the nomination at federal and local levels of loyal black public figures to elective offices, to government agencies and the courts. This would promote the achievement of a twofold purpose. first, it would be easier to control the activity of loyal black representatives within existing institute tions; second, the idea of an independent black political perturnow under discussion within black leadership circles would soon if lose all support.
